Wiping Out of St. Mihiel Salient of Extreme Importance in Advance Toward Germany, Says Gen. March

BIG PRISONER TOTAL SHOWS HUN SURPRISE

Terrain Covered Difficult, But Is Successfully Negotiated by Americans; Many Guns Taken; 4th Division Is Safe

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Elimination of the St. Mihiel salient by the first big American offensive and the consequent reduction of that sector by twenty-two miles, General March said today, is of extreme importance in that it gives the allies a much better base for future offensive operations.

General March paid high tribute to the American forces which in less than two days wiped out this salient, the narrowest and most angular on the entire western front. The operations there, he said, not only were a tribute to the work of the staff, but to the individual soldier.

It is not that he said, warmly. No report has yet come from General Pershing identifying any individual unit which participated in the advance. General March, however, announced the composition of the staff which, under General Pershing, planned and executed the movement.

Eugene Debs Is Given Three 10-Year Terms

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 14.—Eugene V. Debs, charged with violation of the espionage act, was sentenced to ten years in the Moundsville, West Virginia, penitentiary in each of three counts of the indictment by Federal Judge D. C. West, en banc here today. The sentences will run concurrently.

Motion for a new trial was overruled and an exception on behalf of the defendant was allowed. A motion for arrest of the sentence was also overruled.

The court admitted Debs to $10,000 bail, with permission to leave the northern federal district of Ohio only to go to and remain at his home.

A writ of error was granted to the supreme court. On application of counsel bail was granted in the sum of $10,000 upon condition that Debs would observe the law while at large and would not depart from the jurisdiction of the court without leave. Permission was granted Debs only to remain at his home.

BULLETIN. WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 14.—In an attack launched at 1:45 a. m. today the Germans succeeded in the Lys sector, according to the official announcement issued today by the British war office.

Several attacks made by the Germans to recover their former positions at Gouzeaucourt and Havincourt were unsuccessful.

As the result of the British progress yesterday in the district northwest of the British line, the villages of Hesbecourt and Jeancourt, German prisoners taken by the British in the Lys sector, Havincourt sector September 12, 1918, 1500 Field Marshal Haig reported today. (This is the sector before Cambrai).

Metz Forts Now Are Under Fire of American Cannon

It is probable that American troops are now within bombarding distance of the outer forts of the great German stronghold of Metz, as a result of the drive opened Thursday.

General Pershing officially announced that the American front had been extended 12 miles at some points in the direction of Metz from St. Mihiel.

The straight line distance between St. Mihiel and Metz is about 32 miles, but it is likely that since the war began the Germans have extended the fortifications of Metz a distance of twelve or fifteen miles from the city.

ALLIES STRIKE TOWARD WEST CHEMIN DES DAMES

Good Progress Is Also Made On South End of St. Gobain Massif in the Direction of Coney Forest; Gains Large

LONDON, Sept. 14.—In an attack launched at 5 a. m. today on the Ailette and astride the Ailette the French have advanced two miles on an eleven-mile front, taking several towns and 1800 prisoners, according to battlefront despatches this afternoon.

FOCH'S MEN TURNING Foe Flank Near Vailly

The French, striking toward the western end of the Chemin Des Dames, have captured Allemant, just north of the highway leading toward the Chemin Des Dames. Further south they have seized Sancy.

On the northern bank of the Ailette, advancing eastward, the French have reached the western edge of Vailly. Mont Des Singes has also fallen.

Laon from the south and American troops have been fighting between the Ailette and the Vesle. The French astride the Ailette are in a position to flank the Chemin Des Dames and endanger Laon.

The French attack this morning on the south end of the St. Gobain massif in the direction of the forest of Coney is making satisfactory progress.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—"From the entire front there is nothing to report," says today's war office statement.

Astride the Ailette the allied front runs close to the Hindenburg line. The river crosses that line twelve miles south and slightly east of Laon. The most important town immediately before the allies in that region is Ailette-Le-Chateau, behind the Hindenburg line and less than three miles beyond the French front.

AMERICANS WIPE OUT HINDENBURG SALIENT IN 27 HRS.

By FRED S. FERGUSON, United Press Staff Correspondent. WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE METZ FRONT, Sept. 14.—The Hindenburg line is under continuous shelling from heavy and light American guns. Numbers of Germans have been caught behind the American lines and the work of mopping up the salient is in progress.

It is now permissible to state that the task of wiping out the salient, which had existed for four years, was actually achieved in twenty-seven hours. The German defense was so saved in that the Americans advanced hours ahead of their time table everywhere.

The allies retain supremacy of the air, completely preventing German attempts to attack with machine guns and bombs the roads, which are heavy with traffic.

Having defeated and routed the Germans at all points in what once was the famous St. Mihiel salient, American troops swept today faced the enemy along a new line in some places twelve miles north of their old one.

American, driving across the heights of the Meuse from the west, put through the pocket seven miles to Vigneulles, where they met other American forces smashing in from the south, thus completing the closing of the sack.

Our front now runs through Noroy, Jaulny, Xammes, St. Benoit, Kattigville, Hannonville and Herbeville. All the territory within that line is under control of the Americans.

This movement is considered unusually important and significant. Conflans and Amnville are both are behind the prepared line where the Germans might be expected to make a stand.

The devotions of the 40-hours' adoration of the blessed sacrament will commence with the 11 o'clock mass on Sunday at St. Mary's church, Eighth and Jefferson streets. This devotion is held once a year in every Catholic church throughout the world. By arrangement of different days in different places, the result is that in many places in the world, at all times, Catholic people are found intent on this devotion of adoration. The 11 o'clock service will be a high mass. The music will be conducted by St. Mary's organist, John J. O'Connell, under the direction of Professor Norman P. Wilson.

After the mass there will be a procession of the blessed sacrament, which the children of St. Mary's school will participate and sing appropriate hymns.

Devotion of the 40 hours will conclude on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with high mass of reposition and the processions.

On Monday morning, the masses will be at 6, 7 and 10 o'clock. On Sunday afternoon, the masses will be sung and will be eucharistic services, sermon of the real presence and benediction. At 8 o'clock evening mass will be celebrated. On the 11 o'clock music will be repeated.

GARY'S BEDTIME STORY

"Heard some one say:—
"Al! This is too bad. In fact, it is very embarrassing! I don't know what I shall do!"
"Ha! That sounds like trouble," said
Uncle Wiggly to himself. "Here I am where I come in." Then, making his voice louder, while he twinkled his plan-nets to make himself brave, the bunny rabbit gentleman called:
"May I have the pleasure of helping whoever it is out of whatever trouble

"I beg pardon," said a gentle voice, "uncomprehending like."

"I said," went on Uncle Wiggum, "might I have the pleasure of helping you, whoever you are? Are you in trouble?"

"Indeed, I am," was the answer. "I find that I have come away from home without a penny in my purse—I have not even carfare and I am so far away now that—"

"Tut! Tut! Not another word!" laughed Uncle Wiggly. "That is easily mended—no carfare! I have plenty of money. Pray take some of mine. But who are you? I don't see you!"

"Here I am!" went on the voice, and out from under a log crawled a big black cat.

"Excuse me, a perfect stranger, for speaking to you," went on the burglar, "but, as you can see for yourself, my purse is empty," and he held up his pocketbook, turned it upside down to show that there was nothing in it, and then snapped it shut again.

"Yes, that's a strong pocketbook you have, Mr. Wiggly, but I don't think you'll want to go on a long trip with it. It closes with a very strong spring. That's so the money will not fall out and get lost. But now I have no money in it to exchange."

"You shall soon have some," replied Uncle Wiggly. "I have much money."

"I need none. Here, I'll give you plenty," said the burglar, who knew who he was, and the burglar, who was a very clever fellow, and with a low and polite bow he handed Uncle Wiggly a piece of white paper. Mr. G. M. Bug.

"Oh, are you any relation to Mr. Wiggly?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Yes, I have the honor to be her husband," replied the burglar.

"Eray, don't mention it," said Uncle Wiggly. "I feel as if I know you, so I've met your wife. You are just as polite and proper as she is."

"In luck, as you can see by my intrusion," said Mr. Gentle Man Bug. "I always try to be in luck."

"I'm sure you do," said Uncle Wiggly. "The bunny was just going to give the gentleman bug some money for car fare, when, all of a sudden out from behind a hill of sand popped the bad old skuddiemagooon."

"Ah, ha!" cried the skuddiemagooon. "This time I think I am in luck. I have Uncle Wiggly and a bug, too!"

"Pardon me, what did you say?"

"I said I had you both!" growled the skunked mazon.

"Beg to differ with you, my dear chap," said the gentleman bow. "You are laboring under a misapprehension. With that the bug named his store spring, still empty purse right on the soft and tender nose of the skunked mazon, and the bad son creature felt so hurt that he jumped back into the waves with many a howl and wowl and didn't get Uncle Wiggly at all.

"He took my purse, but, as there was nothing in it small harm is done," said the bug. "And I hope I did not act in all ungentlemanly."

STABILIZING LIBERTY BONDS.

Various plans are being proposed throughout the country to stabilize the price of Liberty Bonds. The Investment Bankers Association of America has appointed a committee of four investment bankers in New York to formulate some practical plan. Many suggestions are being received by the committee and are being given careful consideration. The committee will present its report to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

The Canadian plan is being closely studied. There the Victory Bonds are not traded in on the stock exchanges. The Minister of Finance has appointed three committees, with headquarters in Ottawa, Montreal and Winnipeg, and all transactions in Victory Bonds are made through them. These committees fix a price at which the bonds will be sold and bought, and quotations are published daily. There is a difference of 1 percent between the buying and selling prices, and the dealer who brings in the buying order makes the 1 percent commission. Under this arrangement there is an incentive on the part of investment houses to solicit orders for the purchase of the bonds, and this helps to create a demand for the securities. The broker who brings in a selling order receives no commission whatever.

Other plans have been advanced, among them being the organization of a large corporation the capital stock of which would be distributed among the investment dealers throughout the country. It has been suggested that such a corporation should deal exclusively in Liberty Bonds and devote itself to maintaining the price of these securities. Another suggestion offered is that instead of having one central committee in New York City there should be formed twelve committees, one for each of the twelve federal reserve districts, and that their operations be along the line of the three Canadian committees.

George W. Hodges of New York, of the firm of Remick, Hodges and Company, who is chairman of the special committee, suggests that in addition to supporting the market for Liberty Bonds it is proposed to work out a plan by which owners of fifty dollar or one hundred dollar bonds would have adequate facilities for disposing of their holdings in case of need through an agency that would not exact unreasonably high commissions. It has been recognized by many members that there has been need of some large organization for this purpose in view of the fact that many persons with no experience in bond transactions have been forced to pay high commissions.

It is also the object of Mr. Hodges' committee to create a market for Liberty Bonds between loan offerings. Experience has shown that after the quotation of each loan at par, prices immediately declined. It is said that there would be an inducement to dealers to obtain purchasers of bonds during these periods and the demand thus stimulated would have the effect of supporting the market.

Congress is now considering the advisability of making the second and third bond issues tax exempt which will have the tendency to place these issues on a par with the first issue, which is now above par.

It is universally recognized that any plan finally recommended would of necessity have to be most carefully considered and finally approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. Discussion of the subject is most timely.

CONGRESSIONAL EXEMPTION.

The criticism is frequently made that exemption should not have been granted members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives. Probably there are many members of both branches of Congress who did not seek exemption. An innate hostility to all public officials has no doubt prompted certain individuals in urging trench service for members of Congress. Sound reasons can be advanced for the exemption. Generally speaking, the men now in Congress have been selected because they were deemed particularly fitted to represent their constituents in the national legislative halls. Continued service adds to their influence and effectiveness. Loyal Congressmen are needed in Washington in the present crisis as they have never been needed before. When peace looms there will be even greater demand for patriotic voices in both branches of Congress. Experienced legislators who will not be swayed by those who may, either through ignorance or lack of patriotism, urge the acceptance of unsatisfactory terms in order to hasten the end of the conflict, will be of inestimable value to the country.

It should also be borne in mind that a vacancy in the House necessitates a special election, setting the elective machinery of the district in motion and entailing large expense. A special election takes fifty or sixty thousand voters away from their usual work. The money candidates would expend in such special elections might better be used in the various war activities. Americans would enthusiastically join, however, in a demand to place in the front trenches those who fail to accord to President Wilson that full and unstinted support to which he is entitled as commander-in-chief of our land and naval forces.

SIDELIGHT ON AMERICAN HISTORY.

In an address delivered at the unveiling of a statue to Alexander Hamilton, the gift of the late Redfield Proctor to Hamilton College, Elihu Root threw an interesting sidelight on American history.

As a sort of text it was premised that while Hamilton was not greater than Lincoln, if there had been no Hamilton, probably there would have been no Lincoln, because there would have been no Union for Lincoln to save.

Followed an outline of conditions prevailing in Hamilton's time. The treaty ending the Revolutionary removed the external force that held the thirteen colonies together, and which alone secured any semblance of united action. The startling assertion is made that there speedily ensued a state of confusion and absence of general direction and control "almost comparable with conditions in Russia today."

There was no national lawmaker, or executive, or judiciary. There could be no action except by unanimous agreement of all thirteen colonies, and when the war was over they ceased to agree. Each was jealous of its power; jealous and burdensome interstate tariffs and commercial restrictions prevailed. Bitter controversies came to the verge of war. No national consciousness had been awakened, and a people that was individually honest had no collective sense.

It was Hamilton's mission to shape this unwieldy citizenry into a working mass, into a body politic that would be equal to initial national responsibilities. In this he was opposed, combated, thwarted at times, his motives even impugned; but he held to his course, not only in legislative sessions, but in public addresses, the issuing of pamphlets and impassioned exhortations in every form.

The story of his splendid persistence in combatting the forces that were arrayed against the adoption of the constitution is almost a romance of history. We listen to orators in this day who extol that wonderful chart of liberty and freedom, and we affirm the idea that multitudes stood about waiting for it to be read, and when its guarantees were sonorously announced, that they made the welkin ring with shouts of approval. No such thing. For months Hamilton engaged in forensic battle with those who tried to defeat its adoption, headed by George Clinton, who was considerably in the ascendant at the outset; and finally his statesmanship, energy, patience, oratory and patriotism prevailed, a start was made, a nucleus was established, the American commonwealth became a working entity.

That is what was meant in the statement that but for Hamilton there would have been no Lincoln. The American colonists who hated oppression and had the unswerving purpose to fight seven years for independence, had not the abnegation to agree on a course of action after victory was won, and but for such a great character as Hamilton injecting his clear vision, parliamentary tact, patience and lofty patriotism into the situation, all that had been gained by the fighting and suffering and incredible heroisms of the long struggle might have been lost.

The message of Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Labor, delivered before the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and at various Eastbay shipyards, was of a high order. The controlling thought was closer relationship between capital and labor. At the Chamber of Commerce luncheon the speaker took occasion to highly compliment Oakland's leading commercial organization in the advanced step it had taken in providing a commonwealth committee composed of representatives of employer and employee who meet to discuss matters of mutual concern. It was in line with such a policy that prompted the federal government to establish the National War Labor Board of which ex-President Taft is the head.

The controversy between Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee and Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary, is regrettable. At this particular time when the eyes of America are focused on the western front, political leaders should adjourn politics. It probably is true that the "adjourned politics" declaration has not been lived up to in many instances, but nothing is gained by public discussion, particularly when indulged in between the secretary of the President and the chairman of the National Republican Committee. Such discussions are likely to be misinterpreted across the waters and given a significance that is unjustified.

NOTES and COMMENT

The Chico Record thinks it will help some: "Two millionaires are running for the United States Senate in Michigan, which may not reduce the H. C. L., but it'll help some folks to meet it."

The Pope County Record, of somewhere in the United States, admonishes the careless: "We have noticed that some persons, when staking out their cows, tie them to the sidewalks, so that the animals stand on the walk or stretch the rope across and make a nuisance of themselves generally. Owners should be more careful."

The surprise at finding some men to be of registration age whom you thought were older is only exceeded by finding some above it whom you thought were younger.

The long lines of registrants who waited in the rain, and the invariable good humor over it, is another evidence of the patriotic feeling that pervades America.

The new liquor tax of $4.70 a gallon will fetch the total up to $8, which will amount to an effective temperance movement. A drink will come so high that the great habit of treating will be discouraged.

Notice of the passing of the leader of Ford's peace party recalls that he succeeded a San Francisco man, Rev. Charles F. Aked, and in turn leads to an idle curiosity as to what has become of Aked.

Miss Jeanette Rankin is going to try for that Montana senatorship, any way. She was written in on 127 ballots, and thus gets a place in the finals as the candidate of the National party. What's the National party?

Exit Debs. Maximum of twenty years and $10,000 fine, Sherman's definition of a "standards pretty fair." It holds true of epigrams that even the corner of epigrams did not take account of.

Let's see: How did that world series come out? Forgot to look for it, and haven't heard anybody mention the score. Nothing else could so well illustrate the change that a year has brought out in this indifference to what had come to be the great yearly event.

The Governor spent but $386 on his campaign, and, considering everything, it must be concluded that it was invested with extreme judgment.

The German intent, if there is that intent, to restore Belgium is right, though that will not settle it. There must be a final reckoning in which the Hun will receive at least some little part of what is coming to him.

Profiteering coal firm in Philadelphia netted $28,000. There is one commodity in which there is more reprehensible to profiteer than coal, and that's food. And as to that, the longest probe possible ought to be inserted.

The Kaiser says that "everything is at stake." For "everything" the dominating reader will substitute "Hohenzollern" dynasty. That may be even so to the Kaiser, but this war is being fought to conclusion for the express purpose of establishing that there are others.

Now there may be a more venturesome disposition toward running for office. There has been a pretty general idea that it was prohibitive on account of expense, and some who had a hankering refrained for that reason; but we now see from the filed statements that it can be done reasonably, and that success can come from a very inconspicuous outlay.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

Chairman C. C. Moore of the State Council of Defense, says the Oakland Tribune, has taken the right course in assuming jurisdiction over all solicitors of the charity funds in California. If he is to it that his order is not violated to mind of the benevolent public will be much relieved. And the public will be genuinely gratified to learn that 100 per cent of the funds collected for an authorized charity designed to the appeal.—Santa Cruz Sentinel.

One of the most interesting features of the state fair was the better babies contest. It was the first work for child welfare done by the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations in cooperation with state authorities, and thus marks the beginning of a new era in the child welfare movement.—Sacramento Union.

The reported damage done to the cranberry crop in the east by the excessive heat of August is to be deplored, of course, but the prospects are we shall have victories enough by Thanksgiving to make the turkey digestible.—Sacramento Union.

The 18 to 45 registration is going to help the government keep track of all men of I. W. W. tendencies between those ages. Thus the new law will not only supply the soldiers needed to fight the enemy abroad, but it will give the government a line on the identity of the enemy at home—something that is quite important in itself.—Bakersfield Californian.

U. S. FLAGS OF GINGHAM.

French patriotism on the few days of July 4 and 14 far outstripped the supply of American flags. But patriotic youngsters home made out of red, white and blue gingham shirting, hanging from the doors of homes and small shops, gave proof not only of French regard for their new allies, but also of their ingenuity as well.

One such flag hung from a wine shop near one of the American camps. A brand new cotton dress had been sacrificed to make the patriotic display. On the blue field the stars were made of red and white stripes such as any ordinary gingham dress would exhibit. But with its scarcity of stars and the superabundance of stripes the sentiment of the flag and all it stands for were there.

A French yachtsman, meeting a Spiker man in a village, asked his help in purchasing a flag. A tour of all the stores in a large city failed to find a single American banner. "Never mind further search," the yachtsman wrote later, "I have engaged a milliner to sew me one by hand."—Solfer, France.

UNSHACKLING INDIA

The indirect influence of the missionary on social evils is nowhere more marked than in India. There are today no less than a dozen agencies for social reform which, while not Christian—some being even violently anti-Christian—can be traced directly to the influence of the missionaries. The Brahmo Samaj is a Hindu reform sect which occupies something of the same relation toward orthodox Hinduism which the Unitarian and Universalist churches of the West hold toward orthodox Christianity. The Brahmo Samaj owes its existence directly to Christianity.

As the result of an investigation, Mayor Thompson and City Engineer Clement satisfied themselves that there was a sewer leading from the city hall into which the water pipe which supplied the building emptied a constant and expensive stream of water.

TODAY 20 YEARS AGO

Plans were completed for a new athletic field at the University of California, features of which included a grandstand on each side of the field, with accommodation for nearly 10,000 spectators.

Professor James was the guest of honor at a luncheon and reception given by the Alameda county High School Teachers' Club in the parlors of the First Congregational church.

F. M. Smith of East Oakland engineered a borax deal which involved the expenditure of more than a million dollars.

As the result of an investigation, Mayor Thompson and City Engineer Clement satisfied themselves that there was a sewer leading from the city hall into which the water pipe which supplied the building emptied a constant and expensive stream of water.

AN APPRECIATION FROM TILL WILSON FAMILY.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

On behalf of my family and the intimate friends of our beloved son, William Gladstone Wilson, permit me to thank you for the kindly, generous and feeling touch given by the press to the tragic passing of the dear boy.

The first announcement bore the sad news far and wide as it would have been impossible for me to do by any means at my command, so that before even I myself was apprised of his last flight to higher spheres, the love and prayer of thousands was resting on our hearts, and scores of letters and telegrams of condolence were hastening to comfort us.

And we thank you for the detailed and exact publicity given to the subsequent arrangements which enabled all our friends and his intimate within reachable distance to pay their last respects to his sweet memory.

His mother and sisters and I especially thank you for the space you gave to those more intimate and personal references to his superb character in which we sought to feebly acknowledge our debt to the sacred life that heaven had honored us with for the world.

But now I must say that so selfless was his demonstrated life that he would not be willing to accept your courtesy and kindness as a merely personal matter in this hour of common sacrifice. Nor shall we. We accept it as an honor and a service to one soldier of the great army of the republic and to one gallant life in the armies of the allies.

Can we then do less than to pour out our increasing prayers and blessings and our utmost human consolations to all the bereaved parents and loved ones whose noble sons have offered their brave spirits on the altar of the most just cause for which men have ever vicariously died in the history of mankind?

And can we do no less than in some way lift this honor that has been paid to him from his ascended spirit and place it on the brow of his heroic comrades in arms who still suffer unspeakable agonies of war, after untold hardships of military service, and whose bodies in many instances shall lie far from home and loved ones, glorifying foreign soil?

If William Gladstone Wilson's passing shall add some inspiration to the cause of world-democracy, his soul will rejoice and so shall we with him. Gratefully and sincerely,

J. STITT WILSON.

SOUTH AFRICAN IMPORTS.

The value of the articles invoiced at the American consulate at Durban, British South Africa, for the United States increased from $1,568,447 in 1916 to $4,891,720 in 1917, an increase of $3,323,273. This increase, aside from a number of commodities sent the past year that were never shipped from this port before is, to a great extent, made up of increasing wool shipments. The wool invoiced for the United States increased in value from $1,055,322 for 1916 to $4,214,710 for 1917. Among the new articles that were shipped to the United States during the past year were the following: Asbestos, to the value of $98,412; clover, $63,067; hemp fibre, $53,955; cattle horns, $20,624, and ore, $69,835.
